Using lecture, class interaction, and video this class is designed to give first responders the tools needed to effectively interact with people that suffer from mental health issues.

This course is designed to help first responders: (1) recognize the symptoms of mental illness, (2) de-escalate situations involving mentally ill people in crisis, and (3) seek better outcomes on calls involving mentally ill people in crisis.

This course satisfies the 8 hours of Mental Health Training required for Field Training Officers per Senate Bill 29 (SB29). It also satisfies training as designated by Senate Bill 11 (SB11)

SUBJECT AREAS WILL INCLUDE:

- Reducing injuries to both officers and the public
- Reducing the need for the use of force by police officers
- Increasing access to services for people with mental illness and their families
- Identifying persons with mental illness and providing appropriate assistance
- Reducing the stigma associated with mental health
