Tren de Aragua: Understanding the Newest Transnational Threat Virtual - Free

COURSE DESCRIPTION: Throughout the United States, communities are experiencing a significant increase in violent crimes as a result of the newest transnational criminal threat. At the same time, the law enforcement community is struggling to understand this group and the extent of the threat they pose.

- ▶ From the prisons of Venezuela to the streets of the United States, Tren de Aragua brings with it a new level of transnational organized crime. Students of this course will learn:
 - The history of Tren de Aragua
 - Their international structure
 - Their criminal activities in the United States and abroad
 - Much more

IINSTRUCTOR: Andrew Eways has more than twenty-five years of law enforcement experience; first with the Maryland State Police and currently with the Aurora, Colorado Police Department. In that time, he has worked in several fields including Organized Crime Investigation, Narcotics Enforcement, Criminal Intelligence, Homeland Security, and Criminal Gang Investigations. He also supervised and coordinated covert investigations, street-level gang and narcotic enforcement operations, and a series of Title III Wiretaps targeting trafficking by gang members.
