ON-LINE TRAINING

THE CHANGING LANDSCAPE OF SEARCH & SEIZURE

August 13, 2020   0900-1200

“New rules for Law enforcement and how 2019 is shaping 2020 decisions.”

COURSE DESCRIPTION: Search and seizure law is under attack in the courts and by our Legislature. Over the past few years, the courts have rendered several decisions regarding search and seizure that have had a major impact on law enforcement, particularly affecting those officers on patrol. Starting in 2016, the California Legislature has further changed the scope of law enforcement's ability to search electronic media devices and service provider records (including Facebook) under the new Electronic Communications Privacy Act. Law enforcement needs to know the changes, get back to the basics and adapt to these changes. This course will focus on the legal challenges that law enforcement faces in the field when it comes to arrests, detentions and searches resulting from a variety of contacts. Writing search warrants will be addressed, along with recent court decisions impacting warrants, their content and the necessity for warrants in certain situations.

TOPICS COVERED:
- Marijuana and new restrictions on searching vehicles
- The Community Caretaking Function and how it does not exist any longer
- Biometrics are a problem in search warrants
- Social Media and its major impact on jury trials
- New Gun Laws

INSTRUCTOR: Deputy District Attorney Tia Quick, San Diego County District Attorney’s Office, has been a DDA for 29 years and is currently assigned to the law enforcement liaison position at SDPD. She was recently transferred from the Major Narcotics Unit, where she worked specifically on informant issues, search warrants and complex narcotics cases. Prior to that, she worked eight years as the law enforcement liaison at SDPD and has also served in the JUDGE Unit, Gang Unit and the Superior Court Unit during her time as a DDA. For the past 14 years, the focus of her job has been the review of search warrants and updating officers on the law regarding search and seizure, as well as helping maintain a positive relationship between police agencies and the DA’s Office. In 2016, Tia was the recipient of the CNOA Prosecutor of the Year Award.
