California Narcotics laws have changed dramatically over the last six years. These changes have presented challenges for narcotics officers as well as prosecutors. It is critical that we remain informed about the current state of the law and work together to achieve justice in spite of it. This course will provide an in depth review of current drug laws including AB 109, proposition 47, and proposition 64. Additionally, under used penal code and health and safety code sections that have survived these changes will be discussed. This course is designed to provide investigative strategies for maximizing the impact of every investigation involving illicit drugs.

INSTRUCTORS

Deputy District Attorney Heather Heming

Deputy District Attorney Heather Heming has been with the Riverside County District Attorney’s Office for eight years. She prosecuted narcotic cases for four years, and is currently assigned the Tribal Unit. In addition to her motion and trial work, she assisted law enforcement with confidential informant contracts. DDA Heming came to the District Attorney’s Office with a five year background in criminal defense work. At the Riverside County Public Defender’s Office, she handled a variety of criminal cases and spent over a year specifically defending narcotics cases. Her experience as a defense attorney has made her a more effective prosecutor. The totality of her background in criminal law informs her ability to work with and advise law enforcement officers in the area of narcotics.
